Doha Abdelkhaleq

Doha Abdelkhaleq co-founded ESKADENIA Software with Nael Salah in the year 2000, working as an Executive Partner, as well as a legal counsel and an HR expert.

She helped develop ESKADENIA through the years by building on business and technology, partnerships, policies and human capital, aiming at growing a profitable company. Prior to that, Doha worked as a legal counsel and as a human resources director in Jordan, Beijing, Shanghai, Lebanon and Stockholm for the telecom company Ericsson; she attained her first L.L.M in law, at The London School of Economics (L.S.E), followed by a second Masters in law at the university of Stockholm, and a diploma at the Beijing Institute for social and legal studies. She attended a HK school of government executive training after her

L.L.B in law from the University of Jordan. Doha is an active member in several national committees and forums with a focus on ICT, law, women and entrepreneurship. She is a member and facilitator at Franklin Covey Middle East, a member of counsels at the Jordanian Bar Association, a member of the International Women Forum (IWF) Jordan Chapter and of the US Women Business Leaders' Summit. Previously a Vice Chair at the Information Technology Association in Jordan Int@j (2002-2007), she attained the Shaikh Isa Bin Ali Al-Khalifa Award for Arab Volunteers Work. Today, Doha contributes to the ICT and business community in Jordan through frequent postings as a columnist for Alghad newspaper. Moreover, Doha is a standing member at the Economic and Social Council in Jordan and a board member at the American Chamber of Commerce in Jordan.
